Two Maniacs Fight

OUR EUROPEAN friends, statements of England, France, etc., say this country is now tied up in the reparations issue, and that we have made ourselves practically responsible for Germany's debts.

Our statement says no. We were only trying to get a few hundred million dollars out of the scramble.

In any case, you will probably discover that we have given Europe a chance to say, by and by: "You have not kept faith and so we shall not pay what we borrowed from you."

JOHN KUEHN and Albert J. O'Connell fought desperately with heavy mops. Before they were separated, Kuehn was killed. Kuehn overpowered the winner, both were madmen and fought in an asylum. "Oh!" you say, "Crazy, isn't that?"

WHAT does it explain? Were those two maniacs any more crazy or wild than the civilized nations that recently have been fighting and kept at it until millions were killed?

JUST AS YOU make up your mind that prohibition is a failure, because the rich man gets what he wants, when he wants it, etc., statistics come along to make you think again.

More money in savings banks, fewer citizens in jails, some jails closed, fewer go to insane asylums. Bigger wages can't explain that. But then comes this: In New York, biggest city, crime among women has been cut down one-half since prohibition came, in spite of the city's growth.

Bigger wages might explain some of that.

HOW MANY new crimes has prohibition added to the list, while diminishing the number of crimes among women? Father George F. Bennett, of St. Lawrence's Church in Westchester, tells of surprising a group of bootleggers carrying off a boatload of whiskey at night. First they offered him money to be silent, then a load of whiskey and champagne. Police caught the active bootleggers.

WHAT is the cold business side of bootlegging? The latest crime story comes from Sidney Island, British Columbia. It's a story about the captain and his son, alone on their whiskey laden bark. Father and son fight, are beaten down, tied together, and both tied to the ship's anchor. The anchor slowly grinds them to death, as it is lowered over the side.

TEN YEARS AGO this country smoked fifteen billion cigarettes in one year. In 1923, the number was 33 billions.

Smoking women have contributed much of the increase. Figuring a little less than two minutes to a cigarette, that means about two billion hours devoted to cigarette smoking by men and women. Add cigars and pipes, then figure for yourself how many years of time went up in smoke.

BUT FIGURE, also, that life is largely a choice of evils. Nobody knows what foolishness is rolled by the mind, thoughtfully rolling their own, or walking a mile to get just the cigarette they wanted.

The only trouble about tobacco is that when you smoke you die, and that you can't think well. Try it.

FRENCH COMMUNISTS at Aix and elsewhere battle with French Catholics, holding marches singing "The Internationale" revolutionary song. The Catholics sang anthems, in protest against the government's religious policy, which is anti-Catholic.

Musicalists have declared war upon the Free Masons because, among other reasons, he alleges that they aim at destruction of religion.

men assert, Mayor Lawrence J. Quigley has sent a letter to the Board of Aldermen in which he declares that $200,000 more than the original $100,000 will be needed to finish the building.

Another phase of the charges concern the Mayor's alleged reduction of his estimate of additional cost from $200,000 to $200,000, and the Legislature refused to permit the city to borrow $200,000 more for the school.

CALLS CHARGES "FALSE"
Mayor Quigley today, in answer to those who demand an investigation, said:

"I am heartily in favor of the appointment of a committee to investigate the high school construction contracts, or any other such contract of my administration.

"The charges are false. Our new high school, when completed, will be one of the finest, best-constructed and most durable school buildings in the country.

"Architects estimate more money without plans and specifications. One of the architects now quoted as saying that the high school addition could be constructed for $100,000 is a

Pastor Favors Wives Having Plenty of Male Friends

New York, Jan. 20 (City Universal Service).—It's a place of supreme arrogance to say to your wife: 'You shall have no other man friends but me,' and the man who does that is greatly endangering the happiness of his family."

The Rev. Nelson Julian Springer, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church, thus declared himself for the freedom of wives in their choice of friends in the midst of a series of lectures on the life of modern marriage.

"Where does a man get the idea that he can supply the wife with all the companionship she needs?" Mr. Springer asked. "The limiting her friendships is the acknowledgment of lack of confidence."

A man who wanted the job of chief of police at this time that it would cost $120,000.

"The contract was awarded in open, fair and competitive bidding, to the lowest bidder, Simpson Brothers, $200,000, Lower Boston, Kenrick's $214,500. The cost of the building per cubic foot is in reality $13.33—three and one-third cents."

ARCHITECTS' ESTIMATES.
According to the statement which the architect who verified or disavowed the construction cost with the addition of money for heating, lighting and plumbing systems would amount to more than $300,000, or 50 cents a cubic foot.

During the campaign, at last month's election, Charles A. Taylor, told one of the stories. He quoted one firm of architects, Massachusetts, as stating that a new high school in Worcester, larger than the one adding, cost $25,000, or 25 cents per cubic foot, complete.

of life and conduct in public service of the people. I shall find my administration has not been in vain. Let us not forget that it is more pleasing to try to become a heaven than an earth.

"We women have been recognized and admitted into all the rights and privileges of citizenship. Let us give our state the best that is in us, not so much because we are women but because we are citizens who are now to stand side by side with men in the foundation of equal rights and equal laws."

Finally in operation among members of the official family was urged.

ANSWER COOPERATION.
"While the government is divided into three distinct parts," she said, "the judicial, the legislative and the executive, yet I hope and pray that there is to be the freest cooperation on the part of each that will inspire the confidence of the people in the administration of their affairs. One good way to establish this relation is by the department to respect and respect the rights of the others."

Conventions as elaborate as the event was unique marked the inauguration of the new administration with Texas and American flags, and the largest crowd ever to attend an inauguration was on hand, many coming from other States.

For most of them to see Mrs. Ferguson in the role of the inaugural and the inauguration, but all hoped to see the most recent of the inauguration and the inauguration.

The inaugural ceremony itself was brief and simple. It called for a short program, maintaining the south of office by Chief Justice C. M. Wilson, giving a Bible that dated back to the inauguration of the first Governor of Texas, and then the inauguration of the new Governor.

GLAD IN SALUTE.
A cheer which was sounded as the Capitol entrance was mounted as in honor of the new Governor.

At the inauguration, Mrs. Ferguson represented the final stepping stone of her long endeavor to clear the country from the influence of her husband's impeachment.

She never believed the charges of misappropriation of public funds were true. She believed in her impeachment, and during his trial and the days of despair which followed his removal from office she steadily stood by him and encouraged him in his unflinching efforts at a political comeback.

Unhappily, city ordinances and police regulations failed to curb the chaos of the accident have occurred on thoroughfares on which coasting is prohibited.

That the victims of these accidents have violated the law, and have paid with their lives and with maimed bodies, is beside the point. The offense is not serious enough to warrant the awful toll exacted.

It is up to the police departments of Boston and the various cities and towns to see to it that coasters do not play on thoroughfares where traffic is permitted.

Closer police supervision during the past 48 hours would have saved at least one of the lives lost.

The coasters do not realize the jeopardy in which they place their lives and bodies.

The police must see that they are protected against their own thoughtlessness.

SEN. GREGSON'S RUM CASE

of the First National Bank of Jersey City.

Griffin testified that he and Wilson, representing themselves to be New York City bootleggers on a large scale, called on Griffin, a Jersey City insurance broker, on October 12, 1922. After agreeing to sell him Scotch whiskey at $11 a case Griffin told them to call upon Senator Edwards at his bank.

He and Wilson called on the Senator in his office in the bank on November 14, the witness said, and had a half-hour conference with him.

GAVE EDWARDS $350.
"We talked liquor, the quality of liquor and the question of Griffin's responsibility," Herbert testified. Edwards assured us that Griffin was a 'straight shooter' and a 'real boy.'"

Then, said Herbert, he gave Edwards $350 in currency, the price of 100 cases of Scotch whiskey, to be held for payment to Griffin on delivery of the contraband.

The Senator, he said, counted the money over, placed it in an envelope, sealed it, and had Herbert write his name on it and gave the envelope into the charge of the bank cashier, Herbert said that he and Wilson then went to Griffin's office, which was on the second floor of the bank building, Griffin was seated, Herbert said, quoting him as having

"You know that I'm in the liquor business, but I'm not so sure about you. I'd have to see about this."

Herbert said that Griffin asked them to return the next day. When he returned, he said, he suggested that they ask the $350 from Senator Edwards and pay it to him.

They left the Senator without having seen him. The Senator returned the money, Herbert said, and then said to them: "Griffin is in the 'K.' and that they would get a square deal" from him Griffin continued, explaining, however, the witness said, and the deal did not go through.

Must Protect Coasters Against Themselves

COASTING accidents have claimed four lives in Greater Boston within the past forty-eight hours. Another coaster met death when he slid crashed into a truck at Worcester. More than a score have been injured, many of them seriously.

Unfortunately, city ordinances and police regulations fail to curb the chaos of the accident have occurred on thoroughfares on which coasting is prohibited.

2 MORE KILLED IN COASTING ACCIDENTS

Two more coasters are dead and maimed than a dozen are in hospital or at their homes suffering from injuries as the latest toll of Winter sports in Greater Boston.

The two coasters killed are Miss Mary Laughlin, aged twenty-one, of No. 12 Marshall street, Waterbury, and William Quinn, aged five, of No. 14 Windsor avenue, Roxbury.

Miss Laughlin was coasting on White avenue, Waterbury, when her sled crashed into the rear of an automobile. The girl's skull was fractured and she died a short time later at the Waterbury hospital.

Young Quinn was coasting at Heath street and Bickford avenue when his sled ran in front of an American Railway Express truck driven by Charles E. McDonald of No. 124 Terrace street, Roxbury. The truck passed over the boy's body and he died shortly after being taken to the City Hospital.

Herbert Ash, aged seventeen, of No. 10 Newbury avenue, was on the danger list at the Chelsea Memorial hospital, suffering from a fractured skull and other injuries. While coasting on Newbury avenue, he was struck by a truck and threw him against a tree. His companion, Robert Five of No. 14 Windsor avenue, Roxbury, was injured when he struck an automobile.

She, in her nightgown she added two sick women and several children to places of safety before she could leave the smoke-filled building.

For a time it seemed that the entire business section of the town was threatened.

against the storm with lowered heads—the snow descending in wind-blown swirls of fine flesh-cutting crystals.

The temperature was slightly higher than during the previous 24 hours, giving rise to the prediction that rain will follow the snow.

The storm was general along the north Atlantic seaboard, having moved from the Gulf States during the night. It was centered over New Jersey.

$2,000 STORM.
Another $2,000,000 snowstorm swept New York City today, causing the marauding of the full snow report to be made at 10 o'clock and between 10,000 and 12,000 shovellers to keep open the main channels of travel.

One thousand employees of the Public Works Department were ordered out for storm duty by Commissioner J. H. Kourie in an effort to keep all sidewalks in the shopping and the business districts clear of snow.

The department also ordered out their shovellers, which were employed in scraping the main arteries leading out of the city.

The snow shower from the municipal employment bureau gave employment to more than 100 New Yorkers, of whom were put to work by city and 50 by the New Haven Railroad.

TRAILS IN PAYING TEACHERS

Fourteen Other Big Cities Give Better Salaries, School Board Is Told

The pay of elementary school teachers in Boston is less than in any other of the fifteen largest cities in the United States, according to a majority report submitted to the Boston School Committee.

The report was made by the "advisory council," a committee of the teachers, and is said to be the first of its kind in the school history of any American municipality.

Mrs. Helen Keefe of Dorchester was chairman of the committee, which was appointed last October, and is composed of representatives of teachers' organizations. Its membership is limited to six women and five men.

The report stated that Boston's maximum pay of $2,000 to the 1,200 elementary teachers is lower than is paid by cities of far less population. The minimum salary of elementary teachers, $1,250, is equaled by Milwaukee and Baltimore. It was charged.

There were two minority reports submitted, one signed by Miss Anne Allard, president of the Elementary Teachers' Association, and the other by Patrick Campbell, headmaster of the Public Latin School, who is president of the High School Principals' Association. The reports were turned over to the board of apportionment, which has the salary increase demands in its charge.

THE BEST WAY TO MAKE OBSERVATIONS

Washington, Jan. 20.—If you are fortunate enough to be within or close to the limits of the path of the total eclipse of the sun, next Saturday, you may make observations of real value to science.

In fact, the astronomers are asking for your aid and co-operation in the observation of this eclipse. If you are so situated that you are in the path you may be one of the few to see the eclipse and your observations will then be of greatly increased value.

Weather experts predict the weather will be slightly cloudy on the day of the big event. Continual observations are being made, however, in the hope that some of a clear day will be found.

HOW TO OBSERVE CORONA.
Here are some of the questions that you should be able to answer after the eclipse is over:

Was the corona total at your point of observation or, in other words, hidden from view by the moon? If so, how long a time record the exact second of the beginning and ending of the total eclipse if possible, standard time shortly before and after the eclipse, to make sure that you have the correct time.

Did you see the solar corona? If so, make a rapid sketch of its form and the distance to which its streamers can be traced from the sun, estimating its extent in terms of the diameter of the moon. That is, did the longest streamer extend to a distance of one-half, two, three or how many diameters of the moon?

STARS NEAR SUN.
How would you describe the color of the corona, white, pearly or greenish?

Did you see any eruptive prominences rising from the surface of the sun, extending beyond the edge of the moon? These are scarlet flames of incandescent gases, chiefly hydrogen and helium, reaching to heights of thousands of miles, sometimes hundreds of thousands of miles from the sun and often changing completely in form in a half-hour or less.

How dark was it during totality? Did you have any difficulty in seeing the hands of your watch? Did you notice any stars near the moon or more distant? Venus, a first magnitude star, should be seen far over to the northwest. Neatly in line with the eclipsed sun and Venus and about midway between them will appear Alair in the constellation of Aquila (Aquila), also a first magnitude star.

SHADOW BANDS.
About thirty degrees to the southwest of the sun you should see in a close group the three planets, Venus, Mercury and Jupiter.

Even if you are some distance outside the path of total eclipse it should be possible for you to see the group of three brilliant planets at time of greatest eclipse. If you are within the path, they should be visible before the eclipse becomes total. Note at what time you first see them.

Another observation of value that you may make shortly before and shortly after total eclipse is that of the shadow bands; though at some places they are not seen. They are believed to be caused by changes in the density of the air in front of and behind the Moon's shadow-cone, but it is not certain that this is the true explanation of this phenomenon. It is practically certain, however, that they originate in the Earth's atmosphere. They appear as wavy bands of light and shade, fitful and over the ground and buildings, and are seen a few minutes before and after the total eclipse.

SAVE YOUR EYES.
Don't strain your eyes by continually looking at the sun during the partial phase of the eclipse. Even then for the total eclipse. Under no circumstances look at the sun during the partial phase without using dark glasses, smoked glass or dark exposed Kodak film or plate or other suitable protection. Your eyesight may be ruined by failure to observe this precaution.

Don't forget the total phase is short, slightly more than two minutes at the maximum, and plan your observations accordingly. Don't undertake to observe so many different things that you miss one of the more important features of the eclipse. If you wish to get the most valuable observations.

USE LONG FOCUS CAMERA.
Let one observer with the glasses the exact time of beginning of totality and give the signal to another who notes the time. In drawing your sketch of the corona have your dark circular disk representing the eclipsed sun drawn beforehand, and then rapidly sketch the corona on the prepared sheet of paper.

If you attempt to take photographs of the eclipsed sun, make exposures for not over five to ten seconds, because of the effect of the

Heiress Declares She Is Sure to Succeed in Business

Miss Hope Gaston and Mrs. Arthur Derby have joined the ranks of the business women.

These young women, members of Boston's most exclusive social circles, have done this with a serious purpose.

They have long felt that to be a producer instead of a consumer was a duty and that in order to be happy one must also be busy.

So they decided to do something and then began to consider what that "something" should be. They decided on hats.

Miss Gaston and Mrs. Derby have been hard at work for many days making arrangements for the opening of their hat shop. It is called "The Hat Cellar." Here chic and novel creations from Guy Paree will be displayed. Special models will be turned out to order.

"We have worked hard and intend to work harder still to make this a success from every standpoint," said Miss Gaston.

WILL RUN IN SPECIAL RACE AT B. A. A. MEET

Indoor Sports

As has been expected since his arrival in this country, Paavo Nurmi, marvellous Finnish runner, will compete in the B. A. A. games at the Arena a week from Saturday night.

Official confirmation of the fact was made by Albert Geiger, chairman of the B. A. A. athletic committee, who said that Nurmi will sign his name on the entry blank in New York sometime today.

Nurmi is not anxious to run any more mile races while in this country and the B. A. A. will add a special event of 3000 meters to accommodate the Finn, from present indications. While Ellis Linder of the Finnish American A. C., New York, Frank Washington, national A. A. U. cross-country champion, possibly also may and one other distance runner of note will meet his opponents.

The winner will receive a special cup and if a new record is made, a special medal.

Nurmi, in New York, is keeping in condition for the sixteen races in various parts of the country that make up his schedule for the next six weeks, by daily workouts on the boards. He appears as fresh as ever despite his record-breaking performances since he arrived from Finland.

Boston may also have a chance to see the European marvel perform on the outdoor track, when he is at his best, if negotiations now in progress in New York are completed.

Considerable pressure is being brought to bear on him to remain in this country until the Spring and compete on the indoor tracks at the Harvard Stadium and Franklin Field, Philadelphia.

Hugo Quist, his trainer and adviser, thinks rather well of the proposition and is expected to ask the athletic governing body in Finland to grant permission for Nurmi to remain.

Now that Nurmi is all signed up for the Finland games, the directors of the affair are anxiously for the appearance of the Finnish Olympic world champion, here on the same evening. Quist, however, has hopes of signing him to a long-term contract, and is not yet ready to let him go.

The latest to signify their intention of competing are 30 Yale athletes and the crew team of the team from Syracuse University.

The Ell club will be carried in almost every event on the program according to the announcements.

Police Called After Shevlin Defeats Flynn on Foul

In one of the roughest fights ever witnessed in Lynn, Eddie Shevlin of Roxbury was given the decision over Paul Flynn of Boston in the seventh round of their scheduled ten-round bout at the Casino A. C. The club was taxed to its capacity.

Flynn, who had held his own in the early rounds, reported to rough tactics when the Roxbury man began to get in a few telling blows. He was "punching" in the fourth round in the fourth round and the crowd booed him.

Paddy again became reckless in the sixth and Shevlin complained. The Roxbury man, in the seventh, decided to punch out Flynn. Flynn declined to save himself and butted Shevlin three times over the eye before the referee could interfere and end their fight.

Some of the crowd gathered near Flynn's corner and refused to allow him to leave until a squad of police men was called to escort him to his dressing room. Many of the fans waited outside the building and refused to leave until the police ordered them away.

ED TIME SPORT STORIES BY GEORGE N. TUOHY

When Phil Stingil Excited the Populace by Jumping Over a Horse, a Stunt Thought Impossible

This is the seventh of a series of articles on athletic athletes by George N. Tuohy, famous sports promoter, who has been present in athletics for thirty-five years.

"Pamper Commiser" Barbore, "was in its day one of the most popular features of the outdoor season, and vied with the beach picnic for patronage.

"The affair was usually held in one of the most beautiful of the Western States and attracted thousands of spectators.

Thought Impossible

If the writer is not mistaken the first big punching competition ever held in this country was the lecture and war was won by Billy Tucker, a cock featherweight boxer who was making his home in this city at the time. Later Tucker rode the world, doing this act.

A man leap over a horse? "Impossible," said the critics until someone realized that a horse sixteen hands was a rather big beast, but not so big when it was pointed out that a hand is four inches and, if he had horse stood just five feet four inches at his withers. As the writer was called upon to make the jump, the actual jump was not over five feet.

Balked at First

But where to get the man to try it was the question. There was "Pamper" March, a noted professional athlete who had offered his services to any purpose. And there was also Phil Stingil, the B. A. A. jumper, who had forced Mike Sweeney into a new world's record and who was always good for a maximum jump when in form. So it was decided that Stingil should be the man.

The first was the talk of Boston for a long time, but the chances are good that this is the first time the public ever learned of just how high or low Phil jumped that day.
